1. Introduction

The CLIR Style Guide will assist staff and consultants in writing and editing CLIR publications. It identifies rules for providing a consistent and professional look. The guide is arranged in three sections:

1. Introduction
2. Notes to Authors and Editors
3. Style: Quick Reference

Our style rules are based predominantly on The Chicago Manual of Style, 17th Edition. Since many of our publications contain computer terminology, we also use the Microsoft Manual of Style, Fourth Edition. In matters of style, Chicago rules, but if there is a difference of opinion on the same subject, you should make a decision based on the intended audience for the publication (that is, defer to the Microsoft Manual if you are targeting a predominantly technical audience). Above all, you should be consistent in your application of any rule throughout a publication.

A standard dictionary is essential to writing and editing work. Different dictionaries may treat the same words differently in their meanings, hyphenations, and acceptable use. We use Merriam Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary, Eleventh Edition.

Two excellent references on writing that cover questions of use, meaning, grammar, and punctuation are The Careful Writer by Theodore Bernstein, and The Elements of Style by Strunk and White.
2. Notes to Authors and Editors

Text Submission Guidelines

- Submit files in Microsoft Word.
- Use single line spacing for text, and double line spacing between paragraphs.
- Use single spaces between sentences, not double.
- Do not use a first-line indent at the start of each paragraph.
- Indicate italics, bold, lower case, caps, heads, and subheads where appropriate. Extensive text formatting is discouraged since we usually reformat in a page layout program.
- Include a table of contents that clearly shows the hierarchy of headings and subheadings as they appear in the text.
- Any illustrations (charts, graphs, maps, logos, and photos) must accompany the original manuscript. They must be high quality, high resolution, and submitted separately from the manuscript. Be sure to indicate where illustrations should be placed in text.
- References to other works, if used, must be complete. See pp. 12–13, source citations, for examples of how to treat different types of references.

Title

Give careful thought to the title of your publication. A good title contains key words that make it easy for a reader to decide whether the publication is of interest. A good title is also as short as possible and stripped of detailed information, such as the dates or location of a conference or workshop.

Introductory Material

A CLIR staff member usually writes a preface for each report indicating the purpose and scope of the study and its significance to work in the field. The author should provide a brief introduction and background section at the beginning, giving an overview of what the report covers. This section should be written in a way that nonspecialists will understand as the audience may include the academic community, policymakers, and in some cases, the press and the informed public. The author should provide one paragraph of biodata for inclusion in the front matter. The author may also include acknowledgments if desired.
Chapter Openings and Headings

CLIR requires text between chapter heads and first-level headings, and between first- and second-level headings. There should be at least two or three sentences introducing the sections or subsections to follow. Logic also requires that there be at least two headings of the same level in any section or subsection.

Distinctive Treatment of Words

Use italics to denote a word referred to as a word or term, at least the first time it appears. For example, “The terms authentication, authorization, and others associated with access management are defined in Appendix D.”

Reduce as much as possible the use of quotation marks for emphasis or irony.

Formality

CLIR style, while not purely scholarly, is formal in tone. For example, authors should avoid contractions (didn’t, won’t) and words conveying a spoken or less formal style.

References and Source Citations

References are indicated using Chicago’s author-date system of documentation; that is, parenthetical author-date references in the text and a corresponding reference list. The author is responsible for the accuracy and completeness of all references cited.

See source citations in the Quick Reference section for further information; and Chicago, ch.15.

Use footnotes for comments or asides only.

Permissions

The author is responsible for obtaining all permissions that may be required to reproduce any illustrations or to reproduce or quote from any previously published material. Permissions must be obtained in writing and should be submitted with the manuscript.

Person, Tense, and Voice

Editors are experts in bringing consistency in person—we (first person) or the team (third person); and tense, present or past; and in maintaining the active voice as much as possible in a manuscript. However, both author and editor will save time if a conscious decision about these matters is taken at the time the document is written and is followed throughout the drafting stage. Use the first person in preference to terms such as “the present writer,” that is, use “I” or “we” if more than one author. “We” should never be used to refer to a single author or to the author and the reader. Occasional use of “we” to refer to humanity, the nation, or the library or academic community as a whole is acceptable.

Tables and Illustrations

See tables and illustrations in the Quick Reference section.

Website Addresses (URLs)

CLIR prefers to avoid references to website addresses in narrative text. Such a reference should serve some purpose other than simply pointing to a source for further information or providing the URL of an institution mentioned in the text. In principle, URLs should appear only in reference lists.

For electronic sources in reference lists, add the URL following the full facts of publication, per Chicago 15.4. Internet document citations match the model of print publications where possible.

You must provide as complete a citation of web-published works as you would for works in print.

Hyphenation

Hyphens may be omitted in all cases where there is little or no risk of ambiguity or hesitation. For example:

The document was printed on machine-made paper.

BUT The paper was machine made.
3. Style: Quick Reference

a and an
Before a pronounced h, long u (or eu), and such a word as one, the indefinite article should be a:

- a historical study, a hotel
- BUT an honor, an heir

acknowledgment (no e between g and m) acronyms (and abbreviations)

Spell out acronyms and abbreviations the first time they are used in each chapter. This does not mean the full name can never be used again; sometimes it is helpful to the reader to spell it out again.

add-on and/or

We agree with Bernstein that and/or is “a visual and mental monstrosity” and with Strunk and White that it is “a device or shortcut that damages a sentence.” Where the choice of one conjunction or the other will not work, the solution is to write out in plain English, x, or y, or both.

apostrophes

- three Rs (not three R’s)
- 1920s (not 1920’s)
- PCs (not PC’s)
- See also, possessives

appendix, appendixes (do not use appendices) approximately Use about unless actual approximation procedure has been used.

back up (v), backup (n)

bandwidth

bibliographies, see source citations

BIPOC
Spell out first mention: Black, Indigenous and people of color bits per second Spell first mention, but then abbreviate to bps. If you are sure the audience knows the term, you do not need to spell it out.

bitstream

Black
   Capitalize when describing people and cultures of African origin.

black-and-white (adj)
   Before noun (black-and-white photograph); black and white after noun (shown in black and white).

Board
   Always use cap when referring to CLIR’s Board

British spelling
   Use American preferred spelling for words with British variants (e.g., toward, not towards; benefiting, not benefitting; traveling, not travelling). However, retain British spelling if citing a proper name (e.g., United Nations Development Programme)

capitalization
   TITLES AND OFFICES
      Use lower case except in cases of named positions, or when names and titles appear in a list.

      the provost
      head of the library department
      Charles Henry, president of CLIR
      Edward Ayers, Tucker-Boatwright Professor of the Humanities
      Professor Peter Norsag
      Marcello Sonata, professor of music

   ORGANIZATION NAMES
      Capitalize full organization names but not shortened versions:
      Digital Library Federation; the federation.

   the or The in ORGANIZATION NAMES
      Use cap when using full name, The Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library, lowercase when using shortened name, the Beinecke.
      Down t for the following unless at the beginning of a sentence:
      the Board
      the Council on Library and Information Resources (CLIR alone does not use the) the Digital Library Federation (DLF alone does not use the) See also foundations and important contributors for use of the or The catalog (not catalogue)

CD-ROM

centuries Spell out when used in text fourteenth century (not 14th century)

client/server
   Use the slash mark

currency (see money)

data Treat as plural: The data are clear.

decision makers (no hyphen)

degrees
   Omit periods in abbreviations of academic degrees, see Chicago 10.20.
   BA, MA, MBA, PhD

diaspora
   Lower-case, unless referring to Jews living outside Palestine digital-based (adj)

DLF
   Refer to it as DLF in normal writing.
   DLF commissioned a survey of recent literature.

double-click dpi

due to Don’t use it as a prepositional phrase. Use because of owing to or through instead. See Bernstein, p. 152 or Strunk and White, p. 45.

e-mail
   Do not use hyphen. Do not use e-mails for plural; use e-mail messages.

end user (n), end-user (adj)
   Avoid; use user, customer, or you instead footnotes Use numbered notes at the foot of the page for comments or asides only. See source citations for formatting references to works.

foundations and important contributors

Full names and spellings are below. If The is part of the full name as shown, it should always be included and must have a cap, even in the middle of a sentence.

the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation
The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation
The Brown Foundation
EDUCAUSE
Institute of Museum and Library Services
Library of Congress

foreign words

Isolated foreign words and phrases may be set in italics if they are likely to be unfamiliar to readers.

Familiar words and phrases in a foreign language should be set in roman type (e.g., fait accompli, raison d’etre, a priori)

FTE

Spell out the first time used. Full-time equivalent or full-time employee.

full time (adv), full-time (adj)

GB, abbreviation for gigabyte gigabyte, abbreviate as GB.

Spell out in straight text. Use abbreviation with numerals.

gray scale (n, predicate adj, and adj following n), gray-scale (adj preceding n)

hard copy (n), hardcopy (adj)

high-resolution (adj)

hyphens

decision maker

vice president

illustrations see tables and illustrations

Indigenous

Capitalize when referring to peoples of long settlement and connection to specific lands initials
   The space between initials should be the same as the space between initial and name
   R. W. B. Lewis, not R.W.B. Lewis

internet (lower case)

intranet, extranet

KB, abbreviation for kilobyte

kilobit
   Always spell out, do not abbreviate to Kbit.

kilobyte Abbreviate to KB.

listserv

livestream (one word)

logos CLIR brand guidelines and brandmark and wordmark files are available at https://www.clir.org/about-us/clir-brandmark/. Images are provided in a variety of resolutions for web and print. Generally, select a file with a .jpg extension since it is common and easy to use for most needs. You may need a file in vector format—vector lets you resize an image to a larger size without distortion. Some formats support a transparent background instead of white; those formats are .eps, .png,
   .ai, .psd, .tif. Files in .jpg format do not support transparency.

MB, abbreviation for megabyte

megabyte
   Abbreviate to MB.

metadata
   Treat as plural.

macro, micro
   Generally not hyphenated when used as prefixes.
money
Isolated references to amounts of money in US currency are spelled out or expressed in numerals in accord with the general rules for numerals. If the number is spelled out, so is the unit of currency, and if numerals are used, the symbol $ or ¢ is used:

- The fare has been raised to 25¢ (or $.25).
- Hundreds of collectors paid five dollars each to attend the event.
- The cost of registration was US$9,000

Other currencies:
When letters other than symbols are used, a space separates the letter(s) from the numeral:

- forty euros = EUR 40, or
- €40725 yen = ¥725

multi Generally do not hyphenate words beginning with multi non Generally not hyphenated as a prefix: nonprint, nonprofit numbers

In text, spell out whole numbers from one to nine. Numerals are used for all other numbers. Chicago 9.3.

Very large numbers may be expressed in numerals followed by million, billion etc.

- By the end of the fourteenth century, the population of Britain had reached 2.3 million.

Numbers applicable to the same category should be treated alike within the same context; do not use numerals for some and spell out others.

- The project required 2 camera operators during the first year, 6 operators the second year, and 18 in the third year.

At the beginning of a sentence any number that would ordinarily be set in numerals is spelled out, regardless of any inconsistency this may create.

- One hundred men and 103 women will receive degrees.

If an abbreviation is used for the unit of measure, the quantity should always be expressed as a numeral.

- 16 MBps network

online, offline onsite, offsite onscreen papermaking PCs
part time (adv), part-time (adj)

percent
Write it out when used in text, do not use % unless in tabular matter.

possessives
Burns’s poems (not Burns’ poems)
Library of Congress’s books (not Library of Congress’ books)

punctuation
COMMAS
Use the serial comma: Larry, David, and Alice spoke James Adams Jr. died (no comma preferred)

QUOTATIONS
Run short quotations (up to eight lines) into the text and enclose them in quotation marks. Long quotations or extracts should be indented in a separate paragraph block without quotation marks. Place comma inside closing quotation marks: “this,” rather than “this”, is correct. But there are rare cases when the period should be placed after the quotation mark.

QUOTE MARKS AROUND WORDS
Chicago allows for quotes when a standard technical term is used in a nonstandard way and for words used in an ironic sense. We feel the emphasis should be on the Chicago qualification, “Such use of quotation marks should always be regarded as a last resort, to be used when the irony might otherwise be lost. Skillfully prepared for, an ironic meaning seldom eludes the reader even though quotation marks are not used.” We extend this to the use of most nonstandard uses of words.

VERTICAL LISTS
Use numbers for items in a list only when numbered points are discussed in the text, or when the list contains a sequence.

Use a period without parentheses after numerals or letters used to enumerate items in a vertical list:
1. the Bay of Pigs
2. the Berlin Airlift

Numerals or letters enumerating items in a list within a paragraph should be enclosed in parentheses and should not be followed by a period.

Omit periods after items in a vertical list unless one or more of the items are complete sentences. If the vertical list completes a sentence begun in an introductory element, the final period is also omitted unless commas or semicolons separate the items in the list:

The following metals were excluded from the regulation:
  molybdenum mercury manganese

After careful investigation the committee was convinced that
  1. the lawyer had consulted no one before making the decision;
  2. the chair, Smith, had never spoken to Watson;
  3. Smith was as surprised as anyone by what happened.

If the vertically listed items are phrases, especially long phrases, that grammatically complete the sentence containing them, commas may, but need not, be used. If commas are used, the last item is followed by a period.

A colon should not be used to introduce a list that is the complement or object of an element in the introductory statement.

read-only (adj)
real-time (adj) seasons
  Lower cased: spring, fall etc.
setup (n), to set up (v)

source citations

CLIR uses Chicago’s author-date system for citations and references. Basic elements are covered below, but you must reference Chicago (ch.15) for issues not mentioned.

The author-date system comprises two parts: the text citation, usually enclosed in parentheses, and a corresponding reference list. Only brief identifying information is provided in the text and full documentation is provided in the reference list.

The citation in the text consists of the author’s last name and the year of publication of the work, in parentheses. If no author is listed, use the name of the organization publishing the information:
  (American Sociological Association 2008)
  (Annas and Elias 1999)
  (Balduzzi et al. 2012)
  (Beecher 1966)
The citation should be placed where it offers the least resistance to the flow of thought, usually just before a punctuation mark.

It is not surprising, therefore, that researchers expressed uncertainty about the best procedures for adopting data management protocols and making decisions regarding appropriate data access (Asher and Jahnke 2013).

A corresponding reference list should appear in alphabetical order at the end of the report. As an example using the above citations:

If a specific page or volume is cited, it follows the date in the citation and is preceded by a comma. When reference to both volume and page number is required, a colon separates them. A reference to a volume as a whole, without page number, requires vol. for clarity:

(Waters 2006, 42)
(Henry 1998, 3:114)
(Graham 2012, vol. 2)

Titles of works should be capitalized in headline style per Chicago.

Titles of books and periodicals are italicized. Titles of chapters, articles, and other short pieces are set in roman type without quotation marks.

As in bibliographies, a 3-em dash can replace the name of the author, editor, compiler, or translator for successive works attributed to the same person.
Citing websites, blogs, and social media

Websites: Include an access date in citations of websites and other sources consulted online only if no date of publication or revision can be determined from the source. In such cases, record n.d. as the date of publication in the reference list entry and for the in-text citation. To avoid conflation with the name of the author, n.d. is always lowercase.

In-text citation would be (Alliance for Linguistic Diversity, n.d.)

For sources that include a date of publication or revision, use the year of publication in the reference list entry. Repeat the year with the month and day to avoid any confusion.

In-text citation would be (Google 2021)

Blogs: Blogs and blog posts are cited in author-date format by adapting the guidelines provided on the previous page.

In-text citation would be (Kim 2022)

Social Media: Cite publicly available content shared via social media as follows. Private content, including direct messages, is considered a form of personal communication and should be cited as such (see next page). Citation should include

- The author of the post (real name, if known, followed by screen name, if any, in parentheses; if only the screen name is known use that in place of author’s name)
- In place of a title, the text of the post. Quote as much as the first 160 characters, including spaces, capitalized as in the original. If the post has been quoted in the text, it need not be repeated in a note.
- The type of post. List the name of the social media service and include a description if relevant (photo, video, etc.)
- The date, including month, day, and year. Time stamps are usually unnecessary but may be included to differentiate a post or comment from others on the same day.
- A URL
Social media citation examples:

In-text citation would be (Casey 2022)

In-text citation would be (Souza 2016)

Citing unpublished interviews and personal communications

In a parenthetical citation, the terms personal communication (or pers. comm), unpublished data, and the like may be used after the name/s of the person/s concerned, following a comma. If the medium is important and not mentioned in the text, it may be incorporated into the parenthetical reference (see following examples). Reference list entries are unneeded, though each person cited must be fully identified elsewhere in the text. Initials may be used for first names. Unless it is mentioned in the text, a date should be added in parentheses, following a comma. The abbreviation et al. should be avoided in such citations. (Chicago 15.53)

(Julie Cantor, pers.comm)
(Jonathan Lee, Facebook direct message to author, May 5, 2017)
(Brenda Hasbrouck, text message to author, May 5, 2017)
(A. P. Moller, unpublished data; C. R. Brown and M. B. Brown, unpublished data)

spaces

Use single spaces between sentences in text, not double spaces.

The space between initials should be the same as the space between initial and name R. W. B. Lewis, not R.W.B. Lewis.

stand-alone (adj)

state names

In running text, the names of states, territories, and possessions of the United States should always be spelled out when standing alone and preferably (except for DC) when following the name of a city: for example, “Lake Bluff, Illinois, was incorporated in 1895.” In bibliographies, lists, tabular matter, and mailing addresses, they are usually abbreviated. Chicago now prefers the two-letter postal codes to abbreviations. Chicago 10.28.
tables and illustrations

Any illustrations (charts, graphs, maps, logos, and photos) must accompany the original file submission. They must be high quality, high resolution, and submitted separately from the manuscript. Indicate placement of illustrations within text, either with captions in brackets or with low-resolution versions of the graphics.

Tables are set in type whereas illustrations are typically reproduced from artwork or graphics software package.

Every table and illustration should be given a number and should be cited in the text by that number, either directly or parenthetically. Tables and illustrations are separately numbered. Illustrations are referred to as figures. Use Arabic numerals:

The steps for the emulation approach are illustrated in figure 2.

He presented a diagram to illustrate the elements of access management (figure 2).

If these assumptions are true, the changes in unit costs are remarkable (table 4).

Titles of tables and illustrations should be typed using sentence-style capitalization. No period should follow the title. “Figure” should be abbreviated to “Fig.” with a period placed after the figure number when a caption follows.

Fig. 2. An encapsulated digital document

Table 4. Projected costs per volume over 10 years

See Chicago for discussion on handling illustrations and captions, and for discussion on formatting tables. CLIR style allows great latitude in the appearance of tables. The important issue is to apply consistency in appearance and labeling among all tables within a publication.

that vs. which

From The Elements of Style by Strunk and White, p. 59.

That is the defining, or restrictive pronoun, which the nondefining, or nonrestrictive.

The lawn mower that is broken is in the garage. ( Tells which one.)
The lawn mower, which is broken, is in the garage. ( Adds a fact about the only mower in question.)

See also The Careful Writer by Theodore Bernstein, p. 443.

timeframe

time zones

When spelled out, are lower cased.

daylight saving time

(DST) eastern standard time (EST) trade-off titles, “Dr.”

  Use Dr. only for qualified medical people, unless the correct alternative is not known or it would seem perverse to use Mr. (e.g., Dr. Martin Luther King).

toward, not towards under way (adv), underway (adj)

US, USA
  No periods. See Chicago 10.33.

  Use abbreviations only when used as a modifier: US politics; spell out when used as a subject or object: The United States has vast natural resources.

vice president (no hyphen)

website (no initial cap), webpage, the Web, or World Wide Web

workflow

workgroup

workstation x (by)

  Acceptable in 600 x 600 resolution, but use 81/2 by 11 inch paper.

x-ray (v), X ray (n), X-ray (adj)

%, see percent